APOSTROPHE TO THE SEQUOIA.

(The California Redwood Tree.)

O king of the forests! O wonderful tree!
The voice of creation bears homage to thee.
Thy story is marvelous, truthfully told,
A theme of attraction to young and to old.

The land of the Occident gave thee thy birth,
But thou art supreme to the ends of the earth.
Conceived in the mind of the "Ancient of days,"
The great "Master Builder" much wisdom displays.

In building thy towers so grandly and well
That oncoming ages thy glory may tell.
And planting thy roots in a well-chosen soil,
Hath laid the foundations where never turmoil

Can reach thee to harm thee, and sends thee relief
From any disaster that threatens with grief.
Exalting thy crown to the realm of the skies,
The Architect made thee a monarch to be.

Beholding thy glory His creatures all rise
And psalms of praises are sung unto thee.
They cheer and extol thee with gladdest acclaim,
And bow to thy scepter, exalting thy name.

Till answering back o'er the hills and the dales
The joy of thy forests in triumph prevails.
On all the broad footstool thou hast not a peer,
Nowhere hath a rival been found on this sphere.

All others are pigmies, magnificent tree!
None others compare or approach unto thee.
Thy stature's a marvel! Four hundred feet high
Thou barest thy brow to the storms of the sky.

We look up and wonder, and look up again—
To look for thy apex were almost in vain.
Entranced with thy greatness, we look and admire,
And look till thy crown seems higher and higher.

And, loath to depart from the scene, still we gaze,
Prolonging our visit in raptured amaze.
Behold! thy proud columns in majesty rise,
The kings of the forests embracing the skies.

And tourists abroad from the isles of the sea
Are lavish of wonder and praises to thee.
Thy years have been reckoned—the young and the old—
From one to four thousand, the story is told.

The mastodon roamed through thy groves in his pride,
When foraging oft in the quest of his food;
Within thy own lifetime that monarch hath died,
But thou still survivest, the pride of the wood.

And can it be possible, marvelous tree,
Thy forests are doomed by Cupidity's hand?
Shall all thy good heritage desolate be,
And nought of thy glory remain in the land?

Nay; rather shall man in his God-given right,
Arise and defend thee with heroic might.
Who dares with footsteps of vandal to tread
The realms of thy birthright, O sanctified tree!

'Twere better a millstone were hung to his head,
And he were cast forth to be drowned in the sea.
Let never a mortal attempt to de-throne
The monarchs the "Master" exalted of old.

For these are His chosen ones, and He alone
Is able to shield them to ages untold.
Born into the world in the fullness of time,
And reared in a land of an equable climate.

Thy fame hath gone out over all the broad earth
And everywhere people rejoice at thy birth.
At home, in the Occident, here on the sea,
Thy own people sacredly idolize thee!

The nation at large is engaged in thy cause,
And for thy protection is framing her laws.
And so shalt thou live, in the ages to be,
The voice of creation still honoring thee.

—Albert G. Rockfellow.

800 MARINES READY.

1,000 Additional at Key West Can Be Moved to Cuba.

Washington, D. C.—With four American battleships at Guantanamo, the force of marines immediately available for the protection of foreign life and property in Cuba will be increased to more than 1,500. Altogether the battleships Minnesota, Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio, the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet, have on board nearly 800 marines. The cruiser Prairie, which already has landed 450 marines, has about 350 more on board.

Four battleships of the third division, with a thousand men on board, are still at Key West with nearly 1,000 marines, which could be moved to Cuba on short notice.

Esperantists of the Pacific northwest will gather at Tacoma July 3 and 4.

SHADOW PICTURES.

Photographs That Can Be Made by the Aid of a Magnet.

It is possible to produce, with the aid of a magnet, shadow photographs resembling those made by action of the X ray. Either an electromagnet or a permanent magnet will answer the purpose.

Place a key or other iron or steel object on the sensitive film of an ordinary photographic plate, then bring the poles of the magnet near the other side of the plate and keep them there for five minutes or more. Upon developing the plate a shadow picture of the key or other object, as sharp and well defined as any of the X ray pictures, will be found.

By this method only iron or steel or other paramagnetic substances may be photographed, but the sensitive side of the plate is turned toward the magnetic poles and a disk of iron nearly as large as the plate is placed on the other side then shadow pictures of any nonmagnetic objects, placed on the sensitive film facing the magnet, may be obtained. The operations are, of course, conducted in a dark room.

With an electromagnet capable of lifting a weight of 100 pounds one scientist has made such pictures through two inches of interposed wood. He has also obtained shadow pictures with a compound steel magnet weighing little more than a pound.—New York Tribune.

ORIGIN OF "BLACKLEG."

The Term Came From Race Track Men Who Wore Black Top Boots.

The term blackleg, which has come to mean one who systematically tries to win money by cheating in connection with races or with cards, billiards or other games of skill or chance and is used as synonymous with a swindler, a weasel, is of uncertain origin. Some authorities connect it with the black legs of a gamecock, so much used by the sporting fraternity for betting purposes.

According to another and more probable view, the expression had no disgraceful sense attached to it at first, but was applied to turf and sporting men because they were often in the habit of wearing black top boots. When blackleg had thus become a current phrase for professional sporting men it probably passed into use as applied more particularly to those who took an unfair advantage of their opportunities to cheat the unwary.

The derivation of this term was once solemnly argued before the full court of queen's bench upon a motion for a new trial for libel, but that learned tribunal was unable to decide its origin.—London Standard.

The Bitter End.

You have probably often heard a person say "I will follow it to the bitter end" or something to that effect, but very few persons know that this is a nautical term and is borrowed from a ship's cable. If you have ever been on a big ship you must have noticed two big pieces of wood sticking up out of the deck forward, alongside each other. They sometimes have a windlass between them, and they are used to secure the cable that goes to the anchor. These pieces of wood are called the bitts. When the ship comes to anchor and the cable is paid out all that part of it which is abaft or behind the bitts is called the bitter end of the cable. In a storm or in poor holding ground for anchors the more cable that is paid out the better the anchor will hold, and when the captain is at all doubtful he pays out his cable to the bitter end sooner than risk any harm to his ship.—New York Press.

Animal Ink.

Along the rocky shores of New England is much indelible ink. It is better than any that can be bought—a beautiful crimson in color and when applied to fabrics absolutely unchangeable. This ink is contained in little bottles put up by Nature herself, the receptacles in question being certain whelks, or sea snails, of the species known to science as Purpura lapillus. If the shell of one of these whelks be broken there will be found just under the skin of the back a slender whitish vein containing a yellow liquor. The latter when applied to linen with a small brush and exposed to the sun turns first green, then blue, then purple and finally a brilliant crimson. Nothing will wash it out.

Somewhat Mixed.

"Willie, can you tell me what a vegetarian is?"
"A vegetarian is a person who lives on vegetables," replied Willie.
"That is correct. Now I wonder who can tell what an octogenarian is."
"I know," replied Eddie.
"Well, what is an octogenarian?"
"An octogenarian is a person that knocks the other gentlemen."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Weddings in Barcelona.

The wedding invitation means much in Barcelona, Spain, for then every one who receives one must go and give a coin to the bride. That is for her dowry. The father is usually unable to furnish one. He has had to buy a house for her and fit it up, and that is usually expensive.

Very Extraordinary.

"Eb, doctor," said a gillie of a small Scotch town to a friend, "he man has been an extra'ry man, that Shakespeare. There are things he has come into his head that never would have come into mine at a."—Christian Register.

AUTO COLLIDES WITH HORSE.

Occupants Seriously Injured When Machine is Overturned.

Weed, Cal.—About 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night as John Montgomery, Ben Parker, Ralph Perkins, "Boomer" Thompson and a traveling man named Harper were returning in an automobile to Sisson from attending the state highway meeting at Dunsmuir, they met with a serious accident near the Pioneer box factory. Two halfbreed Indians on horseback, leading another horse, were in the middle of the road as the automobile approached. The Indians rode to the side of the road, but the horse they were leading stayed in the middle of the road and was killed by the automobile, which turned over twice after it had struck the animal. The occupants were thrown out with considerable force and most of them were seriously injured.
